

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An encapsulation machine utilizes servo-driven components and a control system to control the encapsulation machine. Servomotors drive the fill supply mechanism, the die rollers and the casting drums. The control system uses a programmable controller to establish relationships between the servo and non-servo-driven components of the machine and a virtual gear to facilitate and automate the operation of the encapsulation machine.